22 Plaintiffs IJL Dominicana, S.A. and Rita Paiewonsky 23 ("Plaintiffs") named It's Just Lunch International, LLC, 24 Daniel Dolan, and Irene LaCota (collectively "IJL") in a 25 Complaint filed August 18, 2008.

27 IJL filed an Application to Compel Arbitration 28 ("Appl."); Plaintiffs' Opposition ("Opp'n") thereto, and

1 IJL's Reply were filed timely and the Court heard the 2 matter on January 26, 2009. After reviewing and 3 considering all papers filed in support of, and in 4 opposition to, the Application, as well as the arguments 5 advanced by counsel at the hearing, the Court GRANTS IN 6 PART and DENIES IN PART the Application, severing 7 unconscionable portions but compelling arbitration.

I. THE ARBITRATION PROVISION

10 The Franchise Agreement signed by Plaintiffs and IJL 11 contain what will be referred to as the "arbitration 12 provision" under the heading "GOVERNING LAW, CONSENT TO 13 JURISDICTION AND ARBITRATION":

14 This Agreement shall be interpreted under 15 the laws of the state of Nevada, U.S.A.
16 and any dispute between the parties, 17 whether arising under this Agreement or 18 from any other aspect of the parties' 19 relationship, shall be governed by and 20 determined in accordance with the 21 substantive laws of the State of Nevada, 22 U.S.A., which laws shall prevail in the 23 event of any conflict of law. Any and 24 all disputes arising out of this 25 Agreement and the transactions
26 contemplated herein between FRANCHISEE 27 and IJL or IJL's affiliates shall be 28 submitted for binding arbitration to be administered by the American Arbitration Association (the "AAA"). Such arbitration proceeding shall be conducted in English by a single arbitrator selected by the AAA, at a location to be determined by the arbitrator within twenty (20) miles of IJL's then current principal place of business, according to the international arbitration rules of the AAA and governed by the substantive laws of the State of Nevada, U.S.A., except for issues concerning the arbitration or arbitrability which shall

1 be governed by the United States Federal 2 Arbitration Act. The parties further 3 agree that arbitration shall be conducted 4 on an individual, not a class-wide, basis 5 and that none of the parties hereto shall 6 be entitled to consolidation of 7 arbitration proceedings involving such 8 parties with those of any third party, 9 nor shall the arbitrator or any court be empowered to order such consolidation.
In connection with such arbitration, the parties waive to the fullest extent permitted by law, any right to or claim for any punitive or exemplary damages against the other and agree that each party shall be limited to the recovery of any actual damages sustained by it.

10 (Lagarias Decl., Ex. 1 to Ex. N. 34-35.)

11

12 II. LEGAL STANDARD

13 Under the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA"), "upon 14 being satisfied that the making of the agreement for 15 arbitration . . . is not in issue the court shall make an 16 order directing the parties to proceed to arbitration in 17 accordance with the terms of the agreement." 9 U.S.C. § 18 4. The district court must determine (1) whether a 19 valid, enforceable arbitration agreement exists and (2) 20 whether the claims asserted in the complaint are within 21 the scope of the arbitration agreement. Id.; Howard 22 Elec. & Mech. Co., Inc. v. Frank Briscoe Co., Inc., 754
23 F.2d 847, 849 (9th Cir. 1985); Chiron Corp. v. Ortho 24 Diagnostic System, Inc., 207 F.3d 1126, 1130 (9th Cir.
25 2000) ("The court's role under the Act is therefore 26 limited to determining (1) whether a valid agreement to 27

28

1 arbitrate exists and, if it does, (2) whether the 2 agreement encompasses the dispute at issue.") 3

4 The FAA requires that "[a] written provision in any .
5 . . contract evidencing a transaction involving commerce 6 to settle by arbitration a controversy thereafter arising 7 out of such contract or transaction, . . . shall be 8 valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such 9 grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation 10 of any contract." 9 U.S.C. § 2. Through the FAA, 11 Congress created a liberal federal policy favoring 12 arbitration agreements. Perry v. Thomas, 482 U.S. 483, 13 489 (1987), quoting Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital v.
14 Mercury Construction Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24 (1983).
15

16 "[A]ny doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable 17 issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration. . ." 18 Moses, 460 U.S. at 24-25. "The standard for 19 demonstrating arbitrability is not high. . . . Such 20 [arbitration] agreements are to be rigorously enforced." 21 Simula, Inc. v. Autoliv, Inc., 175 F.3d 716, 719 (9th 22 Cir. 1999). [Citations omitted.]
23

24 III. DISCUSSION

25 Plaintiffs seek to avoid arbitration on the basis 26 that the arbitration clause, in whole or in part, is 27 unconscionable. If the Court finds unconscionability, it 28

1 may either invalidate the arbitration clause as a whole 2 or strike only those offending parts of the provision.

3

4 A. Unconscionability

5 The Franchise Agreement requires disputes regarding 6 arbitrability to be determined under the FAA. "Because § 7 2 of the FAA provides that arbitration agreements are 8 generally valid and enforceable, 'save upon such grounds 9 as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any 10 contract,' we are required to turn to California law to 11 address [plaintiffs'] arguments regarding the 12 unconscionability of the arbitration provision."

13 Nagrampa v. MailCoups, Inc., 469 F.3d 1257, 1264-65 (9th 14 Cir. 2006). Under California law, the Court determines 15 unconscionability by examining both procedural and 16 substantive unconscionability. Id. at 1280.

17

18 1. Procedural unconscionability

19 To determine procedural unconscionability the Court 20 must examine surprise and oppression. "Oppression arises 21 from an inequality of bargaining power which results in 22 no real negotiation and an absence of meaningful choice .

23 . . . Surprise involves the extent to which the terms of 24 the bargain are hidden in a 'prolix printed form' drafted 25 by a party in a superior bargaining position." Crippen 26 v. Central Valley RV Outlet, Inc., 124 Cal. App. 4th 27 1159, 1165 (2004).

28

1                   a. Surprise

2               Here, as in Nagrampa, the Franchise Agreement was 3 lengthy. Nevertheless, the arbitration provision appears 4 in the index to the Franchise Agreement and the 5 arbitration provision itself is set out in the same 6 manner as all other provisions. Although Plaintiff 7 claims she was surprised by the arbitration requirement 8 imposed by the agreement, she previously represented she 9 read the entire Franchise Agreement. (Declaration of 10 Rita Paiewonsky ("Paiewonsky Decl.") ¶ 9; LaCota Decl.
11 Exs. K, L, M, N.) see Nagrampa, 469 F. 3d at 1282, 1283.
12 Accordingly, surprise was not present here. See id. at 13 1284.

14 15                   b. Oppression

16               Franchise agreements share some aspects of consumer 17 contracts, where there are inequalities of bargaining 18 power. In Nagrampa, the Ninth Circuit applied California 19 law on this issue; the plaintiff in that case was a 20 college-educated first-time business owner who had been 21 unable to negotiate successfully any terms of a lengthy 22 franchise agreement for a franchised coupon business.
23 Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1283 (" . . .[franchisor] had 24 overwhelming bargaining power, drafted the contract, and 25 presented it to Nagrampa on a take-it-or-leave-it basis .
26 . . ."). The Nagrampa court found this evidence of 27 unconscionability" minimal" but sufficient to require

1 examination of substantive unconscionability. Id. at 2 1284.

4 Here, as in Nagrampa, the Franchise Agreement is a 5 form contract and there is only scant evidence that the 6 arbitration provision was subject to negotiation, 7 consisting of electronic communications adduced by IJL 8 indicating discussions over fee structure and the scope 9 of territory. (See, e.g., LaCota Decl. Exs. C, F, G, H.) 10

11 The parties differ on whether the Franchise Agreement 12 is an adhesion contract. According to Flores v.
 13 Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc., 93 Cal. App. 4th 846, 853 14 (2001), an adhesion contract is "a standardized contract, 15 imposed upon the subscribing party without an opportunity 16 to negotiate the terms." The Franchise Agreement is such 17 a contract. Although oppression does not always result 18 from the use of adhesion contracts, the facts here are 19 sufficiently similar to those in Nagrampa to merit a 20 finding of oppression. See Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1284; 21 Crippen, 124 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1167 (upholding 22 enforcement of arbitration provision in form contract as 23 concepts of adhesion and oppression are related but not 24 coextensive.)<sup>1</sup>

25
 26 <sup>1</sup> Plaintiffs' arguments about the language of the contract (i.e. English versus Spanish) are unavailing.
 27 Plaintiffs argue the Franchise Agreement is oppressive because it was never provided in Spanish, without 28 (continued...)

1       Here, as in Nagrampa, "evidence of procedural 2 unconscionability appears minimal," although it is 3 sufficient to require examination of substantive 4 unconscionability. See Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1284.

5

6           2. Substantive unconscionability

7       A provision is substantively unconscionable if it 8 demonstrates "a lack of mutuality." Nagrampa, 469 F. 3d 9 1257.

11           a. Punitive damages bar

12       The Franchise Agreement contains two waivers of 13 punitive damages. The first punitive damages waiver 14 appears at paragraph 18(B), "GOVERNING LAW, CONSENT TO 15 JURISDICTION AND ARBITRATION," and waives "any punitive 16 or exemplary damages" for both parties, for all claims, 17 "to the fullest extent permitted by law." The second 18 punitive damages waiver appears at paragraph 18(D),

19

20           <sup>1</sup>(...continued) 21 alleging IJL promised to provide any materials in 22 Spanish, or that IJL made efforts to exploit any language 23 differences, for example by forbidding interpretation.
24 Plaintiffs also fail to account for the fact that any 25 trial in this matter will proceed in English.

26

27       In addition, IJL produced electronic mail messages 28 from Paiewonsky in very good, although not perfect, business English regarding the Franchise Agreement.
(See, e.g., LaCota Decl. Ex. C.) These show Paiewonsky took time to review and understand the contract including consultation with her brother whose English abilities were superior to her own. This undermines a showing of surprise, because it shows Paiewonsky was well aware of the provisions in the Agreement, contrary to the suggestion IJL hid terms from her.

1 "WAIVER OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES AND JURY TRIAL," and waives
2 punitive damages to the extent permitted by law, 3 excluding from its scope those claims based on 4 "FRANCHISEE'S obligation to indemnify IJL under Section 5 17" as well as claims brought "against FRANCHISEE for 6 FRANCHISEE's unauthorized use of the Marks or 7 unauthorized disclosure of any Confidential Information."

8

9       Only the language in paragraph 18(B) is now properly 10 before the Court because the Court examines the 11 arbitration provision itself for unconscionability, 12 rather than the entire Franchise Agreement. See 13 Nagrampa, 469 F. 3d at 1267.

14

15       IJL's principal argument against the punitive damages 16 waiver is that the Franchise Agreement is not a contract 17 of adhesion. (Reply 10-13). This is unpersuasive as the 18 Court has already determined the Franchise Agreement is 19 an adhesion contract. The Court finds the punitive 20 damages waiver substantively unconscionable as it lacks 21 mutuality; a franchisor is more likely to be defending 22 against punitive damages than seeking them.<sup>2</sup> See 23 Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1257; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc.
24 v. Superior Court, 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 734-35 n. 16.

25

26

27       

---

28       <sup>2</sup>The Court does not rule on the unconscionability of paragraph 18(D).

1                   b. Class action or consolidated action bar

2                   The Franchise Agreement arbitration clause states the 3 arbitration shall be conducted "on an individual, not a 4 class-wide, basis . . ." and blocks consolidated 5 arbitration. Although IJL claims the provision regarding 6 class actions is irrelevant as Plaintiffs have not 7 brought a class action, and no other party has an 8 arbitration provision in their contract, the option of 9 consolidated arbitration has not been unequivocally 10 rejected by the parties. (See Reply 14.) Accordingly, 11 the Court examines the bar on consolidated or class 12 arbitration for substantive unconscionability.

13
14                   The bar on class action or consolidated arbitration 15 is unconscionable; it is one-sided, imposing a liability 16 on franchisees only, rather than on the franchisor.
17 California courts have found class-action waivers 18 unconscionable in adhesion consumer contracts. See 19 Discover Bank v. Superior Court, 36 Cal. 4th 148, 162
20 (2005); Independent Association of Mailbox Center Owners 21 v. Superior Court, 133 Cal. App. 4th 369 at 407-11.
22 Their reasoning is persuasive here, where the ban imposes 23 a burden on franchisees but little inconvenience on the 24 franchisor.

1                   c. Statute of limitations restriction

2               Plaintiffs ask the Court to find unconscionable the 3 Franchise Agreement language at paragraph 18(E), which 4 contractually limits the statute of limitations to one 5 year for all claims except those against a franchisee for 6 failure to pay amounts owed to IJL. This provision is 7 not before the Court because it appears outside the 8 arbitration provision of paragraph 18(B). See Nagrampa, 9 469 F. 3d at 1267. The Court does, however, take this 10 language into account below, when it looks beyond the 11 arbitration provision to determine whether the Franchise 12 Agreement is so permeated with unconscionability that 13 severing certain portions would be inappropriate.

14

15                   B. Remedy

16               The Court may (1) sever unconscionable provisions or, 17 (2) if unconscionability 'permeates' the contract, strike 18 the arbitration provision as a whole. (Reply 14 citing 19 Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc., 20 24 Cal. 4th 83, 122 (2000).)

22               The Court severs the substantively unconscionable 23 portions of the arbitration provision: (1) the bar on 24 punitive or exemplary damages; (2) the bar on class-wide 25 or consolidated arbitration.

26

27

28

1       Striking the entire arbitration provision is not 2 appropriate because Plaintiffs failed to show the 3 Franchise Agreement was permeated with unconscionability.
4 They made a weaker showing than did the plaintiff in 5 Nagrampa, where the Ninth Circuit found there was "no 6 single provision [we] can strike or restrict in order to 7 remove the unconscionable tint from the agreement." 469 8 F. 3d at 1293.

10      There, the franchisor reserved for itself access to 11 the courts for intellectual property matters while 12 relegating all of Nagrampa's claims to arbitration. Id.
13 at 1285. Likewise, at paragraph 18(B) of the Franchise 14 Agreement, IJL reserves for itself judicial adjudication 15 of certain claims.

16 17      Plaintiffs also direct the Court's attention to the 18 statute of limitations restriction at paragraph 18(E), 19 which imposes a one-year statute of limitations on all 20 claims save those arising from a franchisee's failure to 21 pay claims. This limits Plaintiffs' ability to bring 22 claims under the CFIL and the UCL; as it limits only some 23 of IJL's claims, but all of Plaintiffs', it clearly 24 favors the franchisor over the franchisee. (Opp'n 16-25 17.)

26
27
28

1       In Nagrampa, however, the franchisor sought to 2 enforce a choice of forum provision that the franchisor 3 had previously listed as likely unenforceable under 4 California law in the UFOC. Id. at 1290. Accordingly, 5 Nagrampa, a California resident, had justifiably believed 6 she could seek resolution of her complaint in California 7 and was unfairly surprised to learn she would have to 8 participate in arbitration in Boston, Massachussets, just 9 miles from the headquarters of the franchisor. Id. at 10 1285-86, 1289. No comparable shenanigans are at foot 11 here. Whether the arbitration provision is enforced or 12 not, the Plaintiffs, from the Dominican Republic, will 13 win or lose their case in Southern California.<sup>3</sup>

14

15       Although the provisions of paragraphs 18(D) and (E), 16 discussed above, are likely one-sided, they do not show 17 the Franchise Agreement as a whole is permeated with 18 unconscionability. The Nagrampa court described 19 permeation as that state in which no single provision can 20 be struck to create an acceptable contract. See 21 Nagrampa, 469 F.3d at 1293. If the arbitrator determines 22 paragraphs 18(D) and (E) unconscionable, the arbitrator 23 is free to sever them.

25

26

---

27       <sup>3</sup>The arbitration provision provides for arbitration 28 within 20 miles of IJL's headquarters. The Second Amended Complaint at paragraph 1 lists Palm Desert as IJL's principal place of business.

IV. CONCLUSION

2 The Court GRANTS IN PART and DENIES IN PART the 3 Application to Compel Arbitration. It severs the 4 following language from paragraph 18(B):

5 The parties further agree that 6 arbitration shall be conducted on an 7 individual, not a class-wide, basis and 8 that none of the parties hereto shall be 9 entitled to consolidation of arbitration 10 proceedings involving such parties with 11 those of any third party, nor shall the 12 arbitrator or any court be empowered to order such consolidation. In connection with such arbitration, the parties waive to the fullest extent permitted by law, any right to or claim for any punitive, or exemplary damages against the other and agree that each party shall be limited to the recovery of any actual damages sustained by it.

14 The Court refers the case to arbitration.
